showed him the photograph. He said the face looked familiar, but he was unable to place it. He sent me to see a man named Gutheil at 42 - 2nd St. This man runs a private watchmen's agency and is an old friend of Messingkop. He was not in his office and I made several other attempts to find him at his office, but was unsuccessful.

Operative made an investigation around the neighborhood where Mary Eisleitner spent her childhood, (Grand Street between 1st and 2nd Streets) and made numerous inquiries there, but could not find anyone who had lived there for many years. This neighborhood is inhabited mostly by Italians now.
